How We Collect and Use Your Information

We collect information in order to provide the Site and its services to our users, improve the user experience and to communicate with users about the Site and its services and for other business purposes. The information we collect from users will depend on a user's particular interaction with the Site. For example, the information we collect from users who solely navigate the Site will differ from users who create an account/profile and/or transact for services through the Site. Different portions of this Privacy Policy may apply to users at different times.

- Information You Provide Us: In order to access and use certain areas and services of the Site, users may be asked for Personal Information, including identifiers, such as your name, address, email address and telephone number; commercial information, such as business name, address and telephone number; account or credit card numbers or other payment information.

Certain of our business contacts may also supply us with identifiers or similar information such as their name, address, email address and telephone number.

- Information from Third Parties: If necessary, KelovStudio.com obtains consumer information from third-party providers to improve the accuracy of our customer database and to increase our understanding of our customers or to identify potential customers. For example, we get updated addresses from the National Change of Address (NCOA) service to assist us in having the correct addresses for our customers.

- Information We Collect Automatically: When you use the Site, we collect certain internet or other electronic network activity information automatically as described in this section. As discussed further below, we may use a variety of technologies to assist in collecting this information.

Log Files. For all users of the Site, the Site's web server uses an extended log file format, which captures the date and time of visit, referring address (location from which a visitor comes to the Site), type of Internet browser, and visitor's IP address (each computer that connects to the Internet is assigned a unique number, an IP address, for identification purposes). The log file does not capture a user's email address.

Cookies. A cookie is a series of data characters that, when programmed into a website, is placed by the web server into the browser's application folder on your computer. Once placed onto your machine, the cookie will allow the website to "recall" you as a unique individual. The Site uses cookies to personalize information for certain segments of its customer base. In some instances, cookies are also used to associate individual customers with their information profiles where users have elected to create such a profile. For example, through the use of cookies, the Site can "recall" your user ID when you login to the Site on your computer. Should you choose to do so, cookies can be removed from your hard drive and certain web browsers can be set so that cookies are not used or saved. Please check with your browser provider for more information on removing cookies.

Cookie information may allow us to determine things like the URL of the website you visited before coming to this website, the type of browser or mobile device you are using to access the Site, your IP address, language, approximate geographic location, and time zone. We, and/or our authorized third-party service providers may automatically collect this information when you access and use the Site through the use of electronic tools like log files and cookies. We use this information to troubleshoot, administer the Site and its services, analyze trends, gather demographic information, comply with applicable law, and cooperate with law enforcement activities. We may also share this information with our authorized third-party service providers to measure the overall effectiveness of our online tools, content, and programming.

While you may decline to provide certain information to us, it may render you unable to access certain services and features offered through the Site. By making a purchase on the Site, you consent to our providing your Personal Information to our services providers and such third parties as we determine is necessary to process your transaction, such as credit card companies and banking institutions used to process the transaction. You also have the ability to access and change the Personal Information that you have provided to KelovStudio.com by use of the appropriate features on the Site.

Sensitive Personal Information

We may collect information that is considered "sensitive" under some laws including the California Consumer Privacy Act ("CCPA"), such as payment card or other financial information. When we do so, we use such information only for lawful purposes in compliance with the CCPA and other applicable privacy laws, such as to perform the services or provide the goods requested by you and to resist malicious, deceptive, fraudulent or illegal actions.

We do so in order to support our marketing activities and provide you with offers of services in which we believe you may be interested.

- With your consent: We will share Personal Information with outside companies, organizations, or individuals when we have your consent to do so.

- For legal reasons: We will share user information with outside parties if we have a good-faith belief that access, use, preservation or disclosure of the information is reasonably necessary to:
 - meet any applicable law, regulation, legal process, or enforceable governmental request; or
 - protect against harm to the rights, property or safety of us, our users, or the public as required or permitted by law.

- Business Transfer: We may share your information in a business transfer. As with any other business, we could merge with, or be acquired by, another company, or we may file for protection under applicable bankruptcy laws in the future. In such event, user information obtained and maintained by us, including Personal Information, will transfer to a successor entity in connection with the corporate merger, consolidation, sale of assets, bankruptcy, or other corporate change.
